

You Can Help Prevent Accidents

As a parent, you play an essential role in the safety of your children.

You have probably thought about car seat safety, cords on window coverings and how to prevent drowning or burns. But what about laundry safety?

You can make a difference by ensuring you are properly using and storing liquid laundry packets by keeping them up high and out of reach of young children.

Prevention is simple.

1. Make it a habit to always store packets up and out of reach of children
2. Always store laundry packets in their original, sealed container or pouch until they are ready to be used
3. Do not let children handle laundry packets
4. Be sure to read the product label before use

Call the Poison Help line at 1-800-222-1222 immediately if there is an accident.

Locking detergent packets up in a cabinet is an effective way to keep these products out of reach of young children, especially when little ones begin exploring closets and cabinets at an early age.

See more safety tips at www.packetsup.com

american cleaning institute®
www.cleaninginstitute.org

Can I Play With This?

DIRECTIONS: Use this activity sheet with your child to reinforce which items in your home they can play with. You will need a box of crayons for this activity. Help your child identify the items below they can play with by using a green crayon to color in the check mark next to those items. Then, help your child find the items they should never play with by using a red crayon to color in the X next to those items.

REMEMBER: As a parent, you can help prevent accidents in your home by teaching your child about household dangers. Be sure to remind them that all household cleaners including liquid laundry packets are OFF LIMITS and should NEVER be handled by children.